Combining Spiritual and Financial Laws

A University of Chicago professor just won the Nobel Prize in finance for his work in portfolio design. He demonstrated that asset classes such as stocks/bonds, growth/value, international/domestic, large/small tend to act opposite of each other. Thus we can generally expect when one is up the other will be down, and vice versa. Understanding this academically based financial law, investors gain insight in to developing their own all-weather-portfolios. I like knowing what the financial laws are governing money management, especially when I apply them. It gives me a feeling of control, peace of mind, and sense of direction in my financial decision making. It's akin to being in a room and knowing where the walls are.

What I equally like is the application of spiritual laws applied to prosperity. Combining both spiritual and financial laws is powerful. For example, take the Law of Right Thinking. Allowing a thought to repeat, until it manifests into an anchored belief, becomes a strong determinant in how our lives show up. We can know about these universal laws and utilize them to create a magnificent life. Thus, it behooves us to stop, look, and listen.

- Stop; What are the three dominant thoughts you have held as being true about money?
- Look; Go ahead-say them out loud.
- Listen; Are they your own or can you hear another's voice in them?

An additional aspect of the Law of Right Thinking manifests itself when you beat the drum of what you don't want. It strengthens it. Speaking the vision of what you do want, with passion and enthusiasm, is using the same Law. You are creating either way. Deliberately create only your highest good.

A great adventure awaits one who's committed to discovering the spiritual Laws of the Universe, readily found in all of Ernest Holmes' writings. The adventure continues with the expansion of understanding Financial Laws. These are easily discovered through the myriad of financial books currently on the market along with classes, the internet, and pointed sessions with your financial advisor. Enjoy the adventure.
